Legion To Honor Vets During March

The American Legion of Alabama will honor all of Alabama's more than 300,000 wartime veterans during the month of March. They will be guests of honor at celebrations across the state which will observe the 44th founding of the American Legion.

It was forty-four years ago, to the precise on March 15-17, 1919, when a small band of American servicemen, representing the outfits which made up the first American Expeditionary Force of World War I, convened in Paris, France, and breathed life into what has since become one of the greatest dynamic forces for the preservation and perpetuation of the American ideal in our nation of today.

Founded by men who had known the horror and agony of war, the American Legion was established as an organization through which those who had served their country in time of such hostilities could continue to be of service to their beloved land and their fellow man upon their return to civilian life.

The architects of the Legion demonstrated their great wisdom and foresight when they established what has grown into the world's largest veterans organization on a foundation consisting of the following four great programs: Americanism, Child Welfare, Rehabilitation, and National Security.

All of the Legion's 232 posts, scattered all over Alabama, are planning individual or joint observances which will be held on various dates beginning the first week in March and lasting throughout the entire month. All wartime veterans in every hamlet, town and city in Alabama are invited to attend the observance in their community. The Auxiliary of the Legion is joining with the veterans in making plans for these patriotic occasions. Raymond M. Crook, Alabama State Commander, on the announcement of the Legion.

Mrs. Foy Hudson Injured In Auto Accident Sunday

Mrs. Foy Hudson was severely injured Sunday afternoon about 3:30 when the automobile she was driving overturned throwing her from the driver's seat to the ground resulting in serious back injuries and other bruises. She is now confined to the Gibson hospital, Enterprise.

The accident occurred when a tire suddenly went flat. Mrs. Hudson was alone.

Mrs. Hudson works at the Enterprise hospital on week-ends. She is doing special study work in nursing and attends classes one night each week on the subject as well as the duty at the hospital. She was returning home from the hospital and turned off the Enterprise highway on the River Road to visit a friend who was recently a patient at the hospital. The accident happened near the home of Mrs. Billy B. Hutchison in the Elba City limits when the tire went flat. Mrs. Hudson lost control of the car which turned over on the highway.

Mrs. Hudson, wife of an Elba policeman, will probably return to her home here this weekend.

Pierce Selected As Elba Hospital Administrator

J. Drexel Cook, chairman of the Elba Hospital Association, has released the announcement of the appointment of Bill Pierce, of Evergreen, Alabama as administrator of the new Elba hospital. According to the contractors the hospital should be ready for the acceptance of patients in July this summer.

Pierce was born and reared in Evergreen. He attended Troy State College and Auburn University. He is 32-years of age, married and has one four-year-old child. The family are members of the Presbyterian church. They come to Elba from Jay, Florida where he held the position of administrator for two years.

Realizing that the success of the hospital will depend largely on the administrator, the Hospital Board considers the people of Elba are fortunate in obtaining the services of a man with the experience and background of Mr. Pierce," stated Chairman Cook.

Elba welcomes the coming of the Pierce family and offer Mr. Pierce full cooperation in his duties at the new Hill-Burton Hospital. Mr. Pierce is familiar with the operations of the Hill-Burton hospitals, which the Board believes will be of much benefit to the success of the hospital in Elba.

Nation-Wide Bond Drive Underway

As part of a nation-wide Freedom Bond Drive, every family in the county is being asked to buy at least one United States Savings Bond during the first six months of 1963.

Leading civic, fraternal, business, labor, veterans', women's and professional organizations in the county are joining in the effort, according to Sam E. Sawyer, Chairman of the West-Cofee County Savings Bond Committee. The goal is to reach every family, through affiliation in one or more organizations, with the appeal to buy a Bond by July 4.

The deceased was a native of Elba but in his early life he went to Arkansas where he was employed as a mechanical engineer. Later he lived in Los Angeles, California for several years where he continued his profession. Due to ill health he retired in 1946 and returned to Elba to make his home. He was a member of the First Baptist Church and the Masonic Lodge.

RAMBLING ROSES AND FLYING BRICKS

BY EARL TUCKER
THOMASVILLE, ALABAMA

One can hear a lot of explanations as to why we are having so many severe cold spells this winter, but some-thing it takes a little encouragement on my part to get people to start talking freely.

I have found that about half the folks I talk to believe the Russians are responsible for the near zero readings while the other half think jet planes, nuclear explosions and space craft are the offenders. Some of the people are a little reluctant to express their sensible person like me speaks up and blames the weather on jet planes, they really open up.

Personally, I'm a jet man and I think what happens is that these planes get up around six or seven miles, where the air is below zero and then when they come back down near the earth, they open up a sort of funnel and the cold air follows the plane right down to the ground. To our astronauts opened up our lot of powerful big holes and the cold air is pouring in on us something, frightening. That we have to watch though, in our atmosphere, if the hole it up there and come back there just isn't any telling what kind of air is likely to pour in on us. It could be poisonous and I reckon I should get all excited about it, but not now. I am down with worrying about Hal's Lake getting too muddy for fishing. Maybe next year I can find time to worry about the moon air.

One fellow I talked to last week has a new idea as to what is bringing about this miserable weather. He thinks it is television waves and he says if you can pick up a program as far as a hurricane, plus some of the weather stations being started, outer space is getting all clogged up. All of this, of course, is ridiculous, because the air should be impossible to move by now with the cause of the weather. The bad-tempered lady tells her mother she had rather do it herself. One of these days the old lady is going to learn to keep her mouth shut and eat her words.

There are some good things about the extreme weather we have been having. The old folks have quit saying we don't have winters like we used to have back in the 1890's. The next generation, though, will have to listen to a grandpa tell about how we don't have severe cold spells like we did in the 1960's.

But it is my job to bring comfort and cheer into your lives instead of worry and frustration, and I want to assure you that there is a silver lining, and that things could be a lot worse. Consider, for instance, that we haven't had a temper in this country in maybe a hundred years. Way back in Shakespeare's time they were always having tempests and just to read about 'em will send you up to death. There are some church songs which speak of tempests and I reckon people back in those days got a much more of a radio when they suspected that a tempest was brewing and if the announcer said one was headed their way I suppose they all lit out for their bomb shelters and stayed there until the radio pronounced that the tempest had passed and after which they surveyed the damage and set about getting things back in order with the help of Civil ian Defense.

Actually, I wouldn't know what a temper looks like. I have seen one tomato, several hurricanes, plus some storms, hail, sleet and glass-washing rains, but I have never seen a temper. I never looked in my almanac and we aren't going to have one this year and I certainly have faith in what they say. They hardly ever miss. Right now we are having severe cold weather in the Southern states, just like they said, and next week we are going to have more of the same, accompanied by sleet and snow flurries and icy conditions. I am truly sorry I can't offer you any immediate relief, but I am able to offer some good advice. Wrap your pipes, turn off the water and bake a cake for your plumber so he'll feel obligated to put you near the top of his list when it thaws out.

Just be thankful we aren't going to have a temper, but I don't believe I could stand a severe temper right now.

Baptist Praise Actions Of Governor Wallace Concerning Intoxicants

Governor George C. Wallace has written a letter of appreciation to the Alabama Baptist Brotherhood for the resolution passed at a recent convention.

The resolution praised the Governor's actions, specifically setting out his beginning his tenure of office with a prayer breakfast, his pledge not to serve alcoholic beverages at the Mansion and his abolishing all liquor agents.

In his letter to James T. Paul, Jr., Vice President of the Brotherhood, the Governor said: "It is gratifying to me to have the prayers and backing of a group like yours, I pledge to you four years of honest government in which the Christian way of life will be my guiding principle."

The full resolution passed by the Brotherhood: "Whereas we as Christians believe that we need leaders in Government who are dedicated to God and to the cause of Christ; be it resolved that we the individual men presently in the Alabama Baptist Convention meeting in Cullman, Alabama, this February 15th, 1963, resolve that the Honorable George C. Wallace, Governor of Alabama, be commended for..."

"1. Beginning his tenure of office with a prayer breakfast."

"2. Voluntarily pledging to the people of Alabama that alcoholic beverages will not be served in the Governor's Mansion during his administration."

"3. Abolishment of the State Liquor Agent."

"Be it further resolved that we as Christians men actively and prayerfully support Governor Wallace in these actions."

years, and is valued at $3,000.

She went to Birmingham for judging and placing on three different occasions. The first weekend of February 9th, she was judged in an evening gown, in talent and had a five-minute interview with the judges. They asked her questions about herself, her home life, and her plans for the future.

Each of the 179 girls were asked to address an envelope to herself and if she received her letter she was to return for further judging on February 16th. On this occasion she had a ten-minute interview with the judges. She was judged in street clothes, Bermuda shorts, white evening dress and talent again. Linda, along with the other girls stayed at the Twiliver Hotel where all the judging was held.

Sunday, February 17, the 26 finalists received their letters to return. They met at the Alabama Theatre at 9 o'clock and rehearsed until 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time they were given permission to go home.

James Hatcher, who was director of the pageant and also director of "Town and Country" theatre in Birmingham invited Linda to return to the theatre this summer and joining the group as an actress and singer. The group travels over Alabama during the summer months with their production. Linda has not accepted this offer at this time but said she was considering it as a means for earning some extra money to assist in her college education this fall. She plans to major in music. She has no definite plans after college but it is her ambition to sing at the Metropolitan Opera House, or to go into church music.

Thursday, February 21, the girls reported to Howard College gymnasium for rehearsal until 5:30. The pageant began at 9 o'clock Thursday night. Each finalist was introduced individually. Announcement of the top ten winners was made and scholarships awarded. Linda was not in the top ten winners of the Junior Miss contest but was in the top ten in talent.

Adding a lot of color and glamor to the pageant at the Alabama Theatre Thursday night was Mobile's lovely Judy Fruth, the Azalea Trail Queen and the Royal Court of 30 Azalea beauties in their antebellum hall gowns who arrived with their Dandies in top hat and tails to salute Alabama's Junior Miss.

Eleanor Warr, 17, of Clayton, was crowned Alabama's Junior Miss 1963 by Judy Short, reigning Junior Miss, at the climax of the colorful show and pageant on the stage of the Alabama Theatre Thursday night. Diane Duquette, of Birmingham, a senior of John Carroll High School, was named first alternate. Betty Jane Jackson, of Vincent, a tiny brunet pianist, placed third.

Linda began singing at the age of three at church services. She began playing the piano at the age of four. She has taken voice lessons for about a year with George Frey, minister of music of the First Methodist Church of Enterprise, and has been a piano student for eleven years. Before going to Birmingham, Linda received assistance from the song she sang the night of the contest with Bobbie Sue Tindall, a graduate of Howard College. Her piano teachers have been Mrs. George Collier, Elba; Mrs. Shelley Wilson, New Brockton; and Mrs. Max Hayes, New Brockton.

She has sung at many civic organizations, talent shows and school activities. She sang at Elba's Junior Miss contest and the Fireman's Ball during the Christmas holidays here in Elba. During the Christmas holidays she entertained at Ft. Rucker, singing with members of the Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra. She sang at a party for officers and their families and also at a party given at Ft. Rucker for the orphans from Troy Home which was arranged for her by Mrs. John A. Tibbitt.

Linda is active in all school activities. She is president of the Beta Club, editor of the school paper, assistant editor of the school annual, accompanist for the glee club, honor student with an "A" average, member of the Junior and Senior plays, and an F.H.A. officer for several years. She was also selected as "Miss New Brockton" and participated in the Peanut Festival activities in Dothan in the Fall.

Linda said, "I'm thankful to God for the many blessings He has given me and I know I could never have achieved this without His help. I feel that my life will be even greater enriched as a result of my faith and trust in Him."

Linda is a member of the Old Tabernacle Methodist Church. She is vice-president of the M.V.P. Sub-Division and a pianist in the church. She has worked in youth revivals and youth camps throughout the South. She also sings in the Enterprise Methodist Church.

Also winning a scholarship from Coffee County was Faye Allen of Enterprise who captured a piano scholarship to Howard College.

Linda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Folsom of New Brockton.

What To Do For"Winter" Skin

Winter skin is an unfortunate but common effect of our comfortable indoor living. Artificial heat often dehydrates the skin so it becomes papery to the touch and the surface looks parched as well. The skin becomes itchy when you wash it with soap and water and makes-up goes on spottily. The flaky appearance is most noticeable when you apply powder.

If this sounds like a description of your skin, have courage - there is a cure. Try a soothing, lubricating mask. Cleanse the skin first, then stroke on a night cream lavishly. Now, hold a very hot washcloth close to your face. The steam will warm the cream and help it to penetrate the fine top layers of skin. Repeat the process, keeping the washcloth steamy not, for five minutes. Then gently remove most of the cream with tissues, leaving on a fine film as a base for foundation and make-up.

After a week of "facials" you should notice a definite improvement in your skin's appearance.

Dietary Problems Cause Heart, Blood Diseases

The study of the heart muscle tissue of choline-deficient rats is being done by Dr. Charles E. Hunt of the Auburn University School of Veterinary Medicine on a fellowship granted by the Alabama Heart Association.

Dr. Hunt's project is one of eight studies designed to add to man's knowledge of the heart and blood vessels under way in Alabama this year with the aid of Research Fellowships and grants-in-aid totaling more than $60,000 were granted by the Alabama Heart Association for studies without an investment of almost $50,000 in research of heart and blood vessel diseases, a major expenditure in the public's heart fund dollars.

Dr. Hunt says his study is probing the possibility that fats accumulate in the heart of a choline-deficient animal because the heart muscle is unable to burn them for fuel.

Fuel for the heart muscle normally consists chiefly of sugar in the form of glucose. However, it is also able to use fatty acids, particularly during long periods between meals when glucose is less readily available.

Researchers Trace Cause Of TB

Many are the P.T.A. meetings that have been disrupted by news that measles has broken out in the third grade - or the fourth - the second - or the first.

For years mothers have known the infectiousness of measles, how it sweeps through a school without pause or permission, living up to its reputation as one of our most highly contagious diseases. Well, times have changed - it has a rival: tuberculosis - which, in its rather more sluggish way, seems equally as infectious. At least, so say the results of experiments undertaken cooperatively at the Baltimore VA Hospital by the Veterans Administration, the John Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health, and the Maryland Tuberculosis Association.

The research was carried out in the following manner: Air from a hospital tuberculosis ward was channeled into two exposure chambers where there were guinea pigs. Before the air reached one chamber, it was irradiated with ultraviolet light, thus killing the highly infectious germs. Into the other chamber, the air still filled with deadly tubercle bacilli went directly.

Results showed that animals in the second chamber had a high rate of infection. In some cases equaling or surpassing measles. Links were even established between particular patients and certain of the infected guinea pigs.

According to the researchers, the experiment gives basis to the belief that under exceptional conditions the degree of contagiousness of these two air-borne diseases is comparable.

A group of rats are going on a diet at Auburn, Alabama to help solve some puzzles about human hearts.

The diet prescribed for them is designed to produce a deficiency in a vitamin-like substance called choline. Rats with choline-deficiency accumulate large quantities of fat in the heart and blood vessels, and investigators would like to know why.

First objective of the study will be to determine whether fatty acids accumulate in a choline-deficient animal's heart because the deficiency destroys the heart muscle's ability to use them as fuel.

The first step was preparation of a diet which would produce the deficiency. Choline is manufactured in the body in adequate quantities only when the diet is adequate in all three components: protein, fat and carbohydrate.

After the animals have developed a marked choline-deficiency, samples of their heart muscle tissue will be subjected to laboratory tests designed to measure their fuel-burning capacity.

In the same study, Dr. Hunt's unit also will do some tests on the influence of reduced thyroid activity on the hearts of choline-deficient and choline-supplemented animals. When the output of thyroid hormone is reduced, the activity of body tissue slows down, resulting in increased storage of fat throughout the body.

Dr. Hunt's project is one of eight studies designed to add to man's knowledge of the heart and blood vessels under way in Alabama this year with the aid of Research Fellowships and grants-in-aid totaling more than $60,000 were granted by the Alabama Heart Association for studies without an investment of almost $50,000 in research of heart and blood vessel diseases, a major expenditure in the public's heart fund dollars.
